

About me using google slides

BY Rudraveer Singh

A brief introduction

My name is Rudraveer Singh and i am a BCA student at Rungta International University specializing in full stack development in association with google. At this very moment I have average knowledge of HTML, CSS and sub-par knowledge of JavaScript. I am not a very bright student per say but I'm trying harder to improve little by little everyday and someday I hope to be on par with what i wish to be.

Purpose of making these slides

Aside from the fact that this is an assignment and i have no choice but to make this if i want my grades to be on the higher end by the end of this semester, I am also making this to judge myself on how fast i can come up with stuff to write about myself. And so far things are going great.

A Quick Analysis

Way back in 8th standard i was taught that the best way to represent yourself through slides or a document is by the use of a SWOT analysis. So I will start with strengths.

Strengths: i am a quick learner, a fact to support that is that i had just joined the quiz team of my school and in a month's worth of time i was already the part of the team meant to compete in inter-school competitions.

Weaknesses: sincerely speaking, i have a lot of weaknesses. If I had to pick one it would be my indecisiveness. I take a lot of time to decide something for myself and that leads to me losing out on potential opportunities

Opportunities: there aren't any i could think of right now but with the fact that i am a quick learner and my interests/hobbies lean towards creative sectors, i might make myself a bit useful someday

Threats: again, there are a lot. I have a lower attention span and i get distracted easily. So i in theory could get addicted to anything negative. This is just one of many.
